

Researcher User Type

Researcher type of user

Change from this:

For VIVO user stories, a researcher typically represents someone with less prestige, more time, and more direct involvement in research. They may be more motivated to create and maintain a profile to boost their visibility, but could also feel less pressure from the administration to be visible on the Web.

To this:

For VIVO user stories, a researcher represents someone involved actively in research or teaching. This someone could be a faculty member, non-faculty academic member, research associate, or postdoc associate.
