Minutes

- a. fcr:backup/ fcr:restore will not in future API specification.
 - b. Import/Export sprint planning will start tomorrow and the tooling is the future standard for Fedora backup and restore. At some future point, when resources permit, fcr : backup/ fcr : restore will be moved out of the core codebase into a module in fcrepo-exts, with the accompanying changes in support guarantees. At some even later date, once it is clear that the new import/export based tooling accomplishes the same ends as fcr : backup/ fcr : restore, fcr : backup/ fcr : restore will be removed from fcrepo-exts entirely.
- Fedora 4.6.0 doesn't have any blockers, the release candidate will out tomorrow morning. Looking for people in the community to test it. Release Testing - 4.6.0. Aaron Birkland will test windows.
